“Employees Don’t Leave Their Job or Company, They Leave Their Boss!”

When promises aren’t kept and employees are stuck in an abusive, authoritarian, degrading relationships with their boss, they will show more exhaustion, tension, depression, low morale and mistrust.

When supervisors fail to give credit when due, give them the “silent treatment,” make negative comments about them to other employees, invade their privacy, blame others and cover up their own mistakes, there will be less production, quality of product and more absenteeism than formerly thought. A costly turn-over is inevitable.

Progressive and properly trained boss’s know that a good working environment, many times, is more important to the employee than pay.
