Less Stress, More Creativity!

Many young top-flight CEO's are introducing and encouraging employees to use their intuition in brain-storming and creative problem-solving in both business and industry.

Creative right-brained thinkers (intuitives) are becoming a valued part in redesigning businesses, making architectural changes and creating a freer and more democratic corporate structure.

Entrepreneurs owning their own design and advertising agencies now have buildings without walls, so that creative people with fresh ideas, can bounce back and forth between art directors, writers, artists, and those that are contributing to the over-all project. This freedom of space, time and movement allows them to loosen up, relieve stress and interact in a more playful way which feeds the flow of creativity.
